

Getting to Know You: Student Introduction and Preferences

Welcome to the McNair community!

I'm thrilled to have you on board, and I can't wait to embark on this exciting writing journey with you. Before we dive into the course material, I want to get to know you better to ensure I can provide the best support tailored to your needs.

This brief questionnaire, is an opportunity for you to share a bit about yourself, your goals, and your learning preferences. I genuinely believe that understanding each student as an individual is the key to fostering an inclusive and engaging learning environment. I'm also interested in any concerns, challenges, or worries you may have so we can address them proactively.

Rest assured, your responses will be kept confidential and only used to personalize your experience in this course. You can skip any part of this survey that you are uncomfortable with. By sharing your thoughts, you're enabling me to create a space where your unique strengths can shine, and any challenges you may face can be addressed promptly.

All the best,
Heather
